Material Losses in London Prices for American Shares - Apprehensions Abroad That the Miners' Strike Will Extend to Other Branches of Industrial Activity.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 .- The Stock Market opened active and feverish today.

Very material losses were shown in the don prices for American stocks before the opening of business here, and that quarter of the London market was reportd unusually active, with extensive selling which was apparently conducted from this side. The weakness of American stocks in London was mainly attributed to apprehensions that the strike of the anthracite coal miners would extend to other lines of industry, and that circumstance, together with the uncertainty regarding the Presidential campaign and the fears of closer doney market conditions here, explained opening of business.

At the same time, in many instances, the local market opened above parity with the local market opened above party with the London prices. There seemed to be heavy covering of short contracts in the early dealings, in consequence of which there were a number of sharp recoveries scored.

Among the weakest features were Tennsse Coal and Iron, the Steel stocks, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and American To-bacco. The anthracite coal stocks, while fairly active, were in the main firm.

As had been expected there was at the opening of the Stock Market this morning a tendency to decline, owing to the coal miners' strike, the outlook for tighter money, the poor bank statement last Saturday, and finally to the downward movement last week. The opening prices were It follows:

"Arrived here safely last night after a very rapid journey. Met by military and journey. Met by military and journey are now arranging our transprobable extent of the recovery. Many careful market people have believed that the lowest prices of this movement would be registered to day and that covering of shorts and investment buying at the low level would cause a permanent advance. These people expressed the belief this morning that it was the time to buy stocks. Others of it was the time to buy stocks. Others of it was the time to buy stocks. Others of course were less optimistic, preferring to get definite news as to the extent of the strike before making any commitments on the long side. There seems little doubt, however, that the bottom prices doubt, however, that the bottom prices have very nearly been reached if not quite. As to more activity and a greater volume of business being likely now there is little difference of opinion. Cool weather is coming and with it the important market people are returning. To be sure the public is not likely to get into the market until a strong upward movement is begun.

The Street heard news of various kin is from the mine regions, but for the most part it seemed worse than had been expected. The fact that the anthracite coal securities did not decline much, if While there has been no order issued providing for the general closing of the Federal and District Departments it is generally understood and agreed upon among division chiefs that any employe showing a ticket to one of the Galveston Day benefit performances will be excused from duty at half-past 1 o'clock. This sien has already enused a large num. little or no pressure to sell the stock. It is said in coal circles that the companies will make the strike a pretence for working off surplus coal at ad-vanced prices. If this is true, and the strike is short-lived, there is no reason that the coal railways will suffer much.

It is known that there is investment buy-ing of Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The the-ory is held by many that the insiders are willing to see the stock sell around its present level, if not even a little below it, in order that they may acquire a line of stock cheaply. The people that are buying now are the people that intend to hold the stock for dividends, if these dividends do not materialize for two years.

The steel and iron securities were off at the opening, but regained a part of their losses quickly. The Steel and Wire issues both sold "ex" dividend 1 3-4 per cent. HE FOUND A SKELETON. The Discovery of a Purchaser at an Auction Sale. (From the Philadelphia Times.)

(From the Philadelphia Times.)

That inlings are not always what they seem was conclusively demonstrated to the purchaser of a portion of a cabinet in the kindergarten room of the building at Twentieth and Race Streets, formerly occupied by the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. An auction of the contents of the big four-story structure was held last Monday morning, the effects being described in an elaborate catalogue as consisting of "walnut and iron bedsteads, mahogany, walnut, and oak bureaus, large and small bookcases, chairs, ettees, school desks, matricesses, iron bath tubs, laundry fixtures, stoves, tables, engine, boller," etc. These effects had ceased to have any usefulness for the blind asylum, which removed from its

A paragraph in the four-page circular announcing the public vendue informed intending buyers that they were at liberty to examine the articles about to be put under the namuer any day prior to the sale. The inan who bought the cabinet or closet in the kindergarten room, where little blind pupis had been wont to pass their hours of recreation omitted the forheir hours of recreation, omitted the for-nality. All he wanted was the glass in the doors of the case, and he bid it in at bargain and chuckled at his good luck. The literally bought "sight unseen," after manner of schoolboys trading jack-

Wednesday bright and early a brace of brawny draymen arrived at the former blind asylum, commissioned to bear away the case and the glass doors, sedately curthe case and the glass doors, seederly curtained, thereto appertaining. The men were given a ghastly surprise when they started to remove their employer's bargain, for when they pulled down the blind curtaining the doors there lay exposed to view an array of discolored bones in an advanced stage of discolored stage of discolored and horrified examination assured them Making Up the Programmes for the A telegram from Clara Barton, of the that there was literally a skeleton in the closet, the unlooked for contents of the receptacle comprising the remains of two human legs, the same number of arms, and a small quantity of leathery looking sub-stance that was undoubtedly a portion of the anatomy of a man or a woman. recovered their wits, informed Janstor O'Donnell of their sinister discovery. The latter's amazement was so great that for a whole day he neglected to give notice confided the facts in the case to his friend Policeman Brinker, who patrols the bea in which the building is located, and the bluecoat, after viewing the spectacle of quantity of human bones strewing the floor of the kindergarten, whose walls are still adorned with the cheerful legend. "Come Let Us Live With Our Children," in ruddy letters, notified his superiors at the Twentieth district police station. The latter also came, saw, and promptly turned the case over to the coroner, where at present rests.

Janitor O'Donnell is quite certain that Jantor Oblines is quite certain that no one except himself has had access to the building or to the room in which the fragments of a skeleton and the cloven hoofs were found, since the place was closed early in January, 1899. After thinking it over he is of the opinion that the hones were the property of a former northwest.

The Gentry Show arrived in Washington yesterday and immediately upon hearing of the charitable movement on foot among theatrical people, Prof. Gentry, the proprietor, tendered his services, and it was announced this morning that the gross proceeds of the matinee of the Dog and Pony Show will be added to the Galveston fund. The Gentry Show has a reputation as one of the best. It is especially entertaining for children.

The dentry Show arrived in Washington closed early in January, 1899. After thinking it over he is of the opinion that the bones were the property of a former instructor in the asylum, who was at the same time a student in Hahnemann College. He thinks the latter had the portions of the human frame in his possession for scientific study, and that when he left the institution he entirely forgot or neglected to take his specimens with him, and as a consequence the bones have since lain in the closet undisturbed and unsuspected.

The theory is sustained by the fact that the limbs all show evidence of having beer injected with a chemical preservative and have been carefully dissected. That the were or had been in possession of a college or a museum is also indicated by a printed card which was found with the human fragments and which gives "a par-

The entire programme for the Columbia bia Theatre has not as yet been made out, but it will be announced this evening.

Supplies of clothing, shoes, and other articles of apparel for the men, women, and children of stricken Galveston, which have been accumulating at the municipal relief depot in the Inter-Ocean Building, will be forwarded by express as soon as practicable. The plan to send a special relief train from Baltimore and Washington, which was under consideration, has been abandoned.

The people of the Maryland city say that they will send the supplies through the express companies that have volunteered transportation. Washington's supplies, or rather a part of them, have been packed in boxes, ready for shipment of transportation shall have been arrived at.

instant lit up the entire landscape, giving it a brilliancy that was blinding. At the same instant a loud hiss or swishing sound struck the ears of the man and woman, and simultaneously, it seemed, a blazing mass, not more than ten yards ahead, struck the earth.

The roadway trembled under the mighty impact. The occupants of the buggy were nearly overcome by the appalling spectacle, while the horse stood trembling in its tracks.

Mr. Monroe alighted from the buggy and led the horse to the spot where the aerolite had struck. The only trace of the selectial righter the aerolite had struck. The only trace of the celestial visitor was a volume of steam which rose from the spot, indicating the presence of water.

Mrs. Monroe was made quite ill by the shock, and the couple were obliged to stop at a farmhouse for the night.

The Coal Strike.

The Coal Strike.

(From the Springfield Republican.)

Ceal is a necessity of the life and industry of the time. It is a bounty of limited amount. That it should be monopolized for private profit might seem to be had enough, but that this private monopoly of a restricted and essential store of nature should also hold 'itself above dealing with its great army of underfed employes as men entitled to a fair hearing and impartial judgment, thereby provoking a contest which falls as a calamity upon the whole eastern half of the United States, might well seem to be intolerable. It is certainly a case where arbitration should be applied by force when it is befored voluntarily.
